HOW IT ALL BEGAN

A LEGACY 7 DECADES IN THE MAKING

HISTORY AT HONEY RUN

1950 — Marge Stock decides to build an Inn... sometime in the future.

1972 — Marge finds a site for a weekend house, which would become the future home of The Inn at Honey Run. She and her business partner, Margaret Schlichting, would dream about The Inn and later develop it. Julius Blum was employed as the architect of the weekend house.

1979 — The Inn site is finalized, and Julius Blum is again hired. Plans began to develop.

1980 — Construction begins in the summer of 1980. To successfully build The Inn while removing the least amount of trees, the complex is constructed from the guestroom wing to the dining room / kitchen wing, permitting all construction equipment to operate from the dining room end.

1982 — The Inn officially opens for business on November 1st.

1984 — Arthur and Ruth Stock, Marge's parents, built a house on land adjacent to The Inn.

1986 — The architect, Julius Blum, starts working on plans for the Club-Level Honeycomb addition – twelve earth-sheltered rooms dug out of a steep hillside.

1987 — Construction of the Club-Level Honeycomb rooms starts with the objective of offering guests privacy, serenity, luxury, and a return to nature.

1988 — The River's Edge Trail is added. Now known as the Creek Walk.

1990 — The Club-Level Honeycomb addition opens September 1st.

1991 — TheTreetop Pavilion opens in June with a party for Governor Voinovich and travel writers.

1992 — A six-acre orchard and berry farm are planted on the 47 acres north of the property. This site is chosen for its high ground in order to prevent spring frosts. The same year, a house designed by Julius Blum is constructed on the same site. It is currently owned and occupied by a former staff member and his family.

1993 — Completed on October 1, 1993, the Trillium Cottage and Cardinal Cottage, located uphill from the Club-Level Honeycombs and tucked into the woods, open to great reviews. Mr. Blum again creates unique buildings with spectacular views and complete privacy. Each cottage offers two queen-size bedrooms, a living room, deck, and a wood-burning fireplace.

1995 — 120 acres south of The Inn, and 47 acres to the north, are purchased by Marge to protect The Inn from encroaching commercialism. In November, The Inn is named to the "Uncle Ben's Ten Best Country Inns of the Year" list. Marge travels to Chicago to accept the award.

REMEMBERING THE PAST. CELEBRATING THE PRESENT. LOOKING TOWARD THE FUTURE.

1996 — At the Board of Directors' meeting in January, Marge resigns from the position of Innkeeper to gain more time to look after her mother and to fulfill other aspects of her dream for the area. She determines that the staff would select the new Innkeeper, with the approval of the Board of Directors. In July, the new Innkeeper, Rick Blum, assumes his role and Marge leaves The Inn to pursue new ventures.

1997 — Rick Blum resigns as the Innkeeper in June. The Inn is managed by a team consisting of five longtime employees.

1999 — Responding to guest requests, the Trillium Cottage is converted from a two-bedroom guesthouse to a Honeymoon / Anniversary cottage and a Jacuzzi tub for two is added. The Inn also receives the "America's Favorite Inns Award" by the editor of America's Favorite Inns, B&Bs, and Small Hotels.

2000 — Marge's original weekend cottage, also designed by Julius Blum, becomes part of the rental property and is referred to as The Woods House. This increases the number of rental units to 40.

2002 — In October, Phil Jenkins sells The Inn to Jason Nies, our current proprietor.

2003 — In January, Marge sells the property to Phil Jenkins.

2009 — Marge Stock sets out to find a buyer for The Inn at Honey Run.

2011 — The restaurant is officially renamed Tarragon, and updates are made, including the addition of a lounge.

2012 — Wi-Fi is extended to the Club-Level Honeycombs and the cottages, giving all guest quarters connectivity. A new phone system offering voicemail for the guests is added, as well as DirecTV, Blu-ray players, and HD flat-panel televisions in every guestroom. A business center is added to The Inn for guests' use and convenience. The Wood Wall is relocated to the Hearth Room. A Gift Shop is added to the lobby area.

2013 — "Chance Medley" and "Around the Bend" are added to The Holmes County Open Air Art Museum.

2014 — Two beehives are added to the upper meadow. The Holmes County Open Air Art Museum opens in September with a "Haiku Walk" as its first installation, followed by "The Face of the Nations."

2015 — "Being Time" is added to The Holmes County Open Air Art Museum

A new barn is built for the growing flock of sheep and 2.5 acres of pasture are fenced for their grazing enjoyment. The decks outside of Tarragon and the Sage Room are remodeled.

Six Tunis sheep are purchased to begin the Honey Run Flock. The Spa at Honey Run is temporarily closed for re-envisioning.

2016 — The Juniper Lounge at Tarragon opens with a new menu and decor offering guests a more unbuttoned dining experience while staying at The Inn.

2018 — Raised beds for herbs, a well, working electric, fruit trees, and berry bushes are added to The Honey Run Garden.

INTRODUCING BRET ANDREASEN

EXECUTIVE CHEF AT TARRAGON

WHEN DID YOU KNOW YOU WOULD BECOME A CHEF?

My first "Aha" moment in cooking came when I was working as a busser at a restaurant in Medina, Ohio. I was 16 at the time and the chef, who would later become my mentor, featured a salmon entrée. He plated the dish for the staff to try before service, and I remember the entrée in its entirety: It was a miso-glazed salmon with sweet potato chips and french green beans with sesame seeds. It was a good dish, but what amazed me were the green beans! They were so incredibly fresh and very lightly cooked, so when I bit into them they still had some "snap" to them. These green beans jumped off the plate! They were so vibrant in color and the flavor was so complex. I didn't know it then, but that was the moment that made certain I would become a chef.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE FOOD/MEAL TO COOK?

I absolutely love cooking seafood. I've always felt like cooking fish has come naturally to me and I derive great joy from the process. There is a gentleness required with cooking a fish well, and it takes a delicate hand to do it properly. It is not nearly as forgiving as a steak or chicken, so when you cook it just right, there is a lot of satisfaction that comes from it.

WHAT WOULD YOUR "LAST MEAL" BE?

My last meal would be a perfectly roasted chicken, an iceberg lettuce salad, a loaf of crusty bread, and a glass of Chimay beer.

IF YOU COULDN'T BE A CHEF, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

I had to save this question for last because it has been almost a decade since I ever considered doing anything else. One of the chefs I looked up to when I was just starting out told me that if you want to be a chef, you have to think about food in every waking moment. I didn't take him seriously at the time, but looking back, I realize that at this point, I see the entire world through food. I am always thinking about food and gaining inspiration from things that may not even have an obvious relation to food. So if I couldn't be a chef, I think I'd still have to have my hands in the industry. I think I'd like to own an orchard or perhaps a vineyard. In fact, maybe that will be my retirement plan.

EXECUTIVE CHEF BRET ANDREASEN'S

favorite recipes you can cook at home.

Smoky Lemon Honey Glaze/Marinade

1 C Honey, 5 Juiced Lemons, 1 T Worcestershire, 2 t Liquid Smoke, 1 T Salt, 1 t Black Pepper

Method

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Then whisk the ingredients in a mixing bowl thoroughly. Pour ¼ of the mixture into a separate container, and reserve to glaze finished chicken. Toss a quartered chicken in the marinade, and allow to sit for 12 to 24 hours. Sear in a cast iron skillet. Then finish in the oven or it can be grilled.

The honey in the marinade will caramelize the skin, and it will appear burned. This is a good thing, because that is where most of the flavor is. The brining process will help the chicken stay moist. Then brush the chicken with the glaze that was set aside.

Canoli Filling

1 ½ C Ricotta Cheese
½ C + 2T Powdered Sugar
1 C Mascarpone Cheese
¼ t Cinnamon
¼ C Chocolate Chips

Method

Combine all of the ingredients except the chocolate chips in a mixing bowl, and whisk thoroughly until the ingredients are completely incorporated. Add the chocolate chips, and mix until they are evenly distributed. Pipe into cannoli shells, and enjoy with a cup of your favorite coffee.

Marinated Shiitake Mushrooms

1 Qt Shiitake Mushrooms
1 C Rice Wine Vinegar
½ C Soy Sauce
¼ C Honey
1 t Garlic, Minced
1 t Shallots, Minced
¼ t Sesame Oil

Method

Place the sliced mushrooms in a container. Combine the remaining ingredients in a sauce pot, and bring to a boil over high heat. Pour the liquid over the mushrooms, and cover with plastic wrap. Make sure the mushrooms are fully submerged and put a weight on top if necessary.

AROUND THE BEND

Interview with the artists behind the OAAM Installation

ARTISTS' STATEMENT

You come around the bend and in the distance, a solitary tree sits upon a hill. For generations this imagery has inspired a certain amount of curiosity and wonder. Perhaps it is a place of respite from the heat of a summer day, the strongest of its family to hold out against harsh prairie storms, or a destination to allow your mind to wander while you contemplate your day. You are drawn to the dancing rays of light amongst the leaves, the ripples of colors in a glassy nearby creek, the framed vistas of the rolling landscape beyond. The amazing ephemeral qualities of our natural environment are something that cannot simply be copied but rather interpreted. Our piece looks to evoke some of these same emotions. 'Around the Bend' consists of a simple yet dynamically twisting steel structure supporting a vast collection of handmade recycled glass disks reminding the visitor of the inspirational elegance of their surroundings as well as the important message of handcraft and environmental respect. These disks have been forged from glass recycled from the nearby Inn allowing every visitor to literally contribute to the piece. Like these visitors, each disk is unique but as a whole they create a community that interacts with the changing light, seasonal colors and the glistening of the periodic rain. Around the Bend' is meant to be discovered and contemplated; as you emerge from the protection of the forest canopy above and make your way into the undulating grasslands, it emerges as your destination. You move towards it, noticing the way the light interacts with the hundreds of glass discs. The structure behind, although subtly obscured by the disks, elegantly twists providing the structure for the piece as it reaches out over you casting colorful shadows on your route. The path bends sharply and you begin to move around the piece experiencing an ever-changing collection of colors and reflections. You may sit for a moment and notice the intricacies of the individual elements, each unique. As you move back into the forest, you glance back one final time to notice the piece atop the hill, gleaming in the rays of the sunlight.

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

Although our professional careers have revolved around architecture, the thread that unites us is that we each have had our own experiences within the world of art, design and fabrication. Coming from a collective background at an architecture firm in Columbus, Ohio and we eventually ventured out on different paths but always knew that collaborating, outside the realm of architecture, was something that interested us. When this opportunity presented itself, it was a great chance to test how the diverse talents of our group would help shape a collective vision with a powerful story. Brian Sell was recently recognized as the winner of the Nelson Mandela Memorial competition to be installed in northern California. His devotion to the way the natural elements shape our experiences helped frame the concept for the piece. Jim Lehnert has devoted the last 10 years to the investigation and experimentation in the world of glass artistry. His experience with the physics of glass and focus on environmental sensitivity allowed us the opportunity to explore the benefits of using recycled glass. Joel Burke has a passion for fabrication with a series of design-build efforts at a variety of scales. His focus on prototyping, assembly and construction helped shaped how the piece was developed.

BACKGROUND

"Around the Bend" opened on November 3rd, 2018. The piece was conceptualized and constructed by artists and the winners of the 2017 Off the Grid Art Installation contest, hosted by The Inn at Honey Run in partnership with the Greater Columbus Arts Council. Sitting on top of the highest point of our OAAM, the piece was designed to accentuate the colors and curvatures of the surrounding landscape and rolling hillsides.

INSPIRATION

Artist Brian Sell said, "joining forces for this piece came about rather quickly. In discovering the GCAC Off the Grid Competition in Columbus Underground, we found our opportunity to collaborate as designers and fabricators, outside of the field of architecture, our professional focus. It was all Inspired by our individual pursuits in construction, structures, and glass. We derived a design that took advantage of the site, took cues from nature and allowed us to work with a wide variety of colleagues in the fabrication.

"Sourcing all of the recycled glass from the Honey Run site allowed the piece to have both a future and a past that connects it to the site. In the end, the ultimate goal was to be able to build with our hands what we had derived on paper. In building mockups, crushing bottles, pouring the glass, drilling disks, welding steel and fastening pipes we took every advantage of existing techniques and materials to create something unique."

MEMORIES THAT LAST A LIFETIME

STORIES FROM OUR GUESTS

DEBORAH & HARRY BOLEN

"It all began when my husband Harry and I spent our honeymoon at The Inn at Honey Run in December of 1988. Since we were more familiar with another hotel and had no previous experience at The Inn, we planned to spend the first 3 nights at The Inn and the last 4 nights over at the other hotel. We took The Inn into our hearts as soon as we walked in.

Those were the days of the Sunday night "raid the kitchen" dinners, and we had called to say we were delayed due to heavy snow. They told us not to worry, and that they'd save dinner for us. We were welcomed with open arms and had our own private little "raid the kitchen" event. We fell in love with The Inn as we fell more in love with each other. We were in tears that we had to leave The Inn, but honored our reservation at the other hotel.

After checking into our room elsewhere, we were completely bereft and sorrowful. We tried to put on a happy face for each other, but then we both blurted out at the same time, "I want to go back to The Inn at Honey Run." We asked the desk clerk if we could check out early after the first night without penalty, and they nicely said we could. We then called The Inn and BEGGED to return. I think we even said, "We don't care if it's a broom closet. Do you have ANY kind of room for us? Please?! We NEED to come back!" They said they had one vacancy, but it wasn't the level of room we had before. We didn't care because there are no "bad" rooms at The Inn, so we snapped it up.

After two nights, they had a vacancy in a better room, and told us they were moving all our things for us. We treasure every one of our many visits to The Inn, whether staying in The Inn, staying in the Honeycombs, or coming just for lunch or dinner. Each visit was (and is) unique and special in its own way, but the abiding sense of serenity, peace, and beauty is and has always been part of The Inn at Honey Run, and it will always call us back to you."

"Many changes have happened over the years, but The Inn at Honey Run will always be our special place."

DREW & MARY PETERSON

"Twenty years ago, we came to Honey Run on the recommendation from someone who told us, If you want to experience the most peaceful place in the world to spend with the person you love, go to The Inn at Honey Run.

"We drove from Elyria, Ohio, one Saturday afternoon to check the place out and to have lunch. We were so impressed with The Inn and the beauty of the surroundings! The staff could not have been nicer or more accommodating as they gave us a mini tour and shared their own stories of why they loved being part of this incredible place. Back then, "Honey" (the cat) still roamed freely throughout the interior of The Inn. We booked our anniversary stay that same day before we left. We came back to stay in the Honeycomb rooms and thoroughly enjoyed our time there. We have been coming back every year since then.

"There was a time there was a small wine and cheese area in the lower level of the main Inn. We arrived one Saturday some years ago, and a group had gathered in that lower level to watch an Ohio State football game – all of us "strangers" but still part of the "family" at The Inn and having a wonderful time sharing the excitement of the game!

"Many changes have happened over the years, but The Inn at Honey Run will always be "our special place." It is where we reconnect each year. We feel the presence of God's blessings all around us in the beauty and peace of His Creation."

BETH & DAVID DOCHINGER

"The Inn at Honey Run has been a special place to stay for many years. My parents, Joan and Leon, came to The Inn as a couple. Joan sadly died in 1990, and before my father died in 2012, he wanted to share the place they had enjoyed together. So we traveled there to stay one night, a wonderful memory that remains with me today.

"Knowing of The Inn and the special memories it had for my parents, when I met David, the love of my life, about 8 years ago, I wanted to introduce him to its beauty, quiet, and the place my parents appreciated so much. When I spoke of The Inn, it turned out that David's family lived in Baltic, Ohio, (Sheetz) and sold their farm to the Miller family many years ago. Amazing to learn of his connection to this part of the country. We traveled to The Inn and also visited with the Miller family to see his family's home today. We came back annually and then decided to plan a commitment ceremony with our family and friends.

"While we were at The Inn, writing our vows, we decided to visit Berlin to see if we could find handmade rings. At the last place we visited, the White Raven Native Elements on Main Street, we found our rings. They are matching Navajo rings and the images tell a story...two people are standing looking up to the sky...viewing the moon and the shooting stars...similar to what we experienced writing our ceremony on our Honeycomb patio.

"We have received many compliments on our rings and always tell them the story of sharing our loving commitment at The Inn at Honey Run."

A TREASURED MOMENT

ROBERTA'S STORY

How do you celebrate, what would probably be your husband's final birthday...joyfully, peacefully, simply?

Fred and I always loved traveling. Unfortunately, with radiation, chemo, and regular trips to nearby Cleveland Clinic for my husband's treatment of his Glioblastoma (brain cancer), he was pretty much wiped out. Then someone told me about The Inn at Honey Run. How I wish I could remember who told me; but unfortunately, I had too many things on my mind back then.

Throughout our journey with this beast of a disease, our strength was fortified with what we came to know as "God Moments." Finding The Inn at Honey Run was one of those moments.

We drove down right after a visit to Cleveland Clinic, which also happened to be on Fred's birthday, October 25th. Everything was perfect! The room and terrace were just beautiful. The dinner and service were fabulous, and Fred actually ate everything - a feat for him! We awoke to a beautiful day! With his uneasy gait, I was worried about walking the trails. We didn't go far, but we made a point to stop to see the fantastic art pieces right in the woods. We even found a couple to take a picture of us underneath the wooden arch. I will always treasure that particular picture with my hubby. With walking sticks, we were able to make our way to the pond, as well. Being in that quiet space, so perfect and serene, brought such joy and peace to our hearts. These are the things in life that were important to us now. I will always treasure the memories made here.

My beautiful husband passed away the following April.

I cannot thank your staff enough for all the little touches that imprinted our lives forever.

Sincerely,
Roberta Vernon

GARDEN OBELISK

SPRING PROJECT

A garden obelisk can be an easy way to add interest to a container display or flower bed. These unique structures add height without taking up too much visual space and can be used as a trellis for a multitude of vining plants. This year, I used obelisks in containers at our Club-Level Honeycombs and on Tarragon's Terrace. With a bright red Mandevilla trained on each, surrounded by deep red petunias, white verbena, sweet potato vine, and purple scaevola, these displays really shined.

TOOLS & SUPPLIES

Phillips Screwdriver or drill
20 - 1 ½" Exterior Grade Screws
4 – 1"x 1" x 4' Pieces of Treated Wood
2 – 1"x 1" x 7" Pieces of Treated Wood
2 – 1"x 1" x 5" Pieces of Treated Wood
2 – 1"x 1" x 10" Pieces of Treated Wood
2 – 1"x 1" x 8" Pieces of Treated Wood

DIRECTIONS

Take two of the 4' pieces of wood and lay them down in a V shape Take one the 7" and one of the 10" boards and lay them on top of the longer pieces. The 7" should be placed near the top of the "V" so there is 1" sticking out past the underlaying pieces on each side. The 10" is near the bottom, with the same overlap. Screw each end down so that you can pick up the entire structure without anything sliding around or loose. Repeat everything so that you have two halves of your four-sided obelisk. Next, take the remaining pieces (5" on top, 8" on bottom) and screw these to the sides that are sticking out each of your walls to form the pyramid shape. Once your structure is freestanding, screw the tops of your walls together with 2 screws. These instructions can be easily adapted for a larger obelisk or one made of branches. Once complete, you can stain or paint them to add another touch of interest!

HANGING BASKETS

SUMMER PROJECT

Hanging baskets are everywhere during the summer months. They can usually be purchased from almost any corner store, but why not create one that no one else has and is unique to you. Filling a basket with beautiful displays and keeping them alive is not as hard as you may think!

TOOLS & SUPPLIES

Hanging basket frame with coco liner
Good quality potting mix
Slow-release fertilizer
Water-soluble fertilizer
1 – Thriller (Tall plants that give height)
Grasses, Coleus, Dracaena, etc.
1 – Filler (Medium height plants, usually lots of color, that fill in between the thriller and spiller)
Geranium, begonia, Petunia, etc.
1 – Spiller Calibrachoa, Bacopa, Sweet Potato Vine, etc.

DIRECTIONS

First, fill your basket ¾ full of potting mix. Do not fill to the top or you will not have enough room for your plants. At this point, add your slow release fertilizer if you need it. Arrange your plants while they are still in their containers from the greenhouse. Only when you like how the plants are placed, should you remove them from their plastic pots. Start with your largest plant (usually the thriller) then work your way down.

Only plant deep enough so that no new potting mix will cover the mix that your plant came with. Once everything is planted, fill around the root balls with more potting mix to fill in the gaps. The soil level in the basket should be about 1 inch from the top of the coco liner. Water everything and hang. To get the most out of your baskets, use the water-soluble fertilizer 2-4 times a week. If the basket is going to a very hot and sunny area, or if you know you are not that reliable when it comes to watering, you may want to add water-retaining crystals to your potting mix. Though these are not magic, they do help the container stay moist for longer periods of time.

PUMPKIN BASKETS
FALL PROJECT

Last year, we received many questions and compliments on our hanging pumpkin displays that lined our covered walkway and hung from the lampposts along the driveways. This is a quick project that can add a fun aspect to your fall décor. Once the season is complete, these can easily transition to your winter holiday décor.

TOOLS & SUPPLIES
(Makes a single 2' tall basket)

Gloves
Wire Cutters
Craft Wire
Wire Garden Fencing with 2" x 4" Openings
Spray Paint (I used a dark walnut shade)

DIRECTIONS

Cut a 2' x 2' square of the garden fencing. Then, orient the fence so that the rectangles are standing on their short sides. Count in 2 rectangles from each bottom corner of your square of fence.

You will then use your wire cutters to cut a diagonal from the bottom to the top outside corner of the square. The resulting shape should be a trapezoid. Then, bend the cut sides in so that they meet and form a cone. Use the craft wire to tie them together. This step can be tricky!
Once you have your conical basket, simply paint, let dry, hang, then fill with as many pumpkins & gourds as you can!

WINTER SUET FEEDER
WINTER PROJECT

During the winter months, one of our favorite attractions at The Inn is a live fir tree covered in handmade bird feeding ornaments on Tarragon's Terrace. The natural feeders that adorn the branches attract all kinds of feathered friends, and guests love to sit and watch them flutter in the snow. These seed and berry-covered treats are simple to make and will provide days of feasting.

TOOLS & SUPPLIES

Bird Seed (A blend will give you a wider variety of birds)
Lard
Dried Fruits
Twine
Ramekins, Small Bundt Pan, or Other Form
Cooking Spray

DIRECTIONS

To get started with creating your ornaments, lightly coat your ramekin or pan with cooking spray. Then, mix the birdseed and dried fruits together and fill the container about half full. Use a double boiler to melt the lard then pour over the seed mixture. Allow to cool at room temperature or place in the freezer until the lard has solidified. Once solid, remove from the mold, and use the twine to hang from the nearest tree.

TIP

Natural containers can be used to hold suet as well. I have used pieces of curled bark or halved grapefruit, and each worked beautifully!

OHIO'S PREMEIRE
WEDDING DESTINATION VENUE

"Jason and The Inn staff made our wedding day perfect. My husband and I are so happy we chose The Inn at Honey Run for our venue, and would recommend it to anyone looking for a rustic, intimate, and classy venue. Many of our guests commented on how they would love to return to The Inn for a stay sometime and that it's a hidden gem that they are glad they were introduced to. The event went smoothly, the food was excellent, and the staff treated both the wedding party and all of my guests like royalty. The owner himself was present and helpful with even the smallest detail. It is the small things that communicate that they truly care about your experience."

OPEN AIR ART MUSEUM

NATURE PROVIDES THE CANVAS

The Holmes County Open Air Art Museum (OAAM) is a fusion of nature and art set within a majestic landscape of lush forest and rolling hillsides. Spread throughout the grounds of The Inn, the region's only OAAM showcases original works from local and regional artists of various backgrounds, mediums, and disciplines.

OAAM features a collection of artwork, sculptures, earthworks, and other creations permanently installed outside, unprotected from the natural elements. The Museum showcases art that you can walk through, gaze up at, and witness in each changing season, art that evolves against the backdrop of rural farmland and forested trails.

INSPIRATION FOR THE MUSEUM

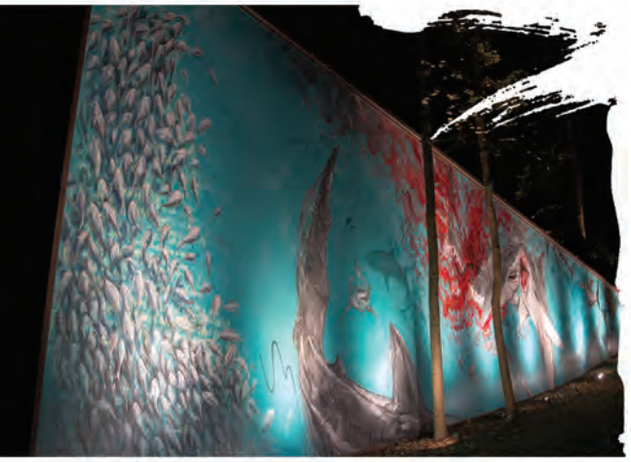

Around the world, rural locales are enriched and enhanced with public art – many countries in Europe and several in Asia and South America have an open air art museum. Even the United States has several variations of an open air art museum or sculpture garden.

In 2002, my family decided to take a trip to Latvia, where my mother's side originated. My grandmother's health was deteriorating, and we wanted to have the opportunity to share this trip back to her native land with her. During the trip, I had the opportunity to visit the Open Air Art Museum at Pedvale. My imagination awakened as I walked around the landscape, taking in the works of art. I'd always appreciated art and enjoyed the museum experience, but this cool June day in Latvia uncovered a passion for interacting with art in an open air format. I've been looking for an opportunity to start something like this in the United States ever since. Other inspirational open air art museums include Inhotim in Brumadinho, Brazil; Middleheim Museum in Antwerp, Belgium; and Storm King Art Center in New Windsor, NY. The 1 1/2 mile long path wanders through our woodlands and hilltop meadows. Visit our website for more information on current and coming installations.

FEATURED MASTERPIECES

"CHANCE MEDLEY"
Mandi Caskey

"Chance Medley" is a 90x22 ft. mural by Columbus artist, Mandi Caskey, featuring beautiful hues of blue and green, contrasting with bright reds and oranges, designed to create a juxtaposition of nature and self-awareness — "a journey of serenity encountering its counterpart, chaos."

"AROUND THE BEND"
BLS Collaborative

Consisting of recycled glass from The Inn and welded steel, sitting atop the highest point of our Open Air Art Museum, "Around the Bend" was designed to reflect the colors and accentuate the curvatures of the surrounding landscape and is truly admiring of Northeast Ohio's rolling hillsides.

"ARCHER'S ROOST"
Lauren Skunta

Archer's Roost is made up of over 12,000 hand-dyed paint sticks secured to a net that inexplicably floats overtop the trail of the OAAM. The natural yet vibrantly-colored structure blows fluidly in the wind, creating a honeycomb-like tunnel that lives and breathes with the surrounding air.

"HAIKU WALK"
Julie Warther, Haiku Society of America

When Julie Warther, Regional Coordinator for the Haiku Society of America, approached The Inn at Honey Run about hosting a Haiku Walk, collaborations began for the first-ever Holmes County Open Air Art Museum installation and the main feature for the Grand Opening Ceremony of the Open Air Art Museum.

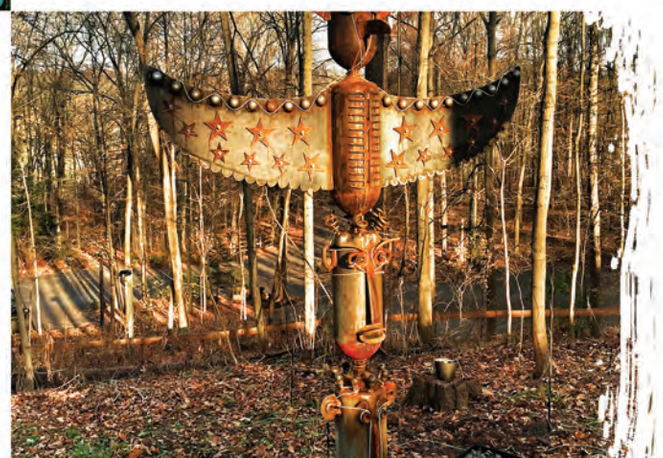

"BEING TIME"
Katherine Marie

Over a five-month span, Columbus artist Katharine Marie created a life-sized cuckoo clock composed of mostly found organic materials. This German-style clock celebrates the Amish culture and German-named towns of Holmes County.

"WOVEN"
Walter Herrmann

Walter Herrmann joined the OAAM as its first-ever resident artist in November 2015. Herrmann constructed a massive, native "Earthwork" installation, made of materials found solely within the grounds of the Open Air Art Museum at The Inn at Honey Run.

"FACE OF THE NATIONS"
Jan & Vince Bowden

Local Holmes County metalworking artists, Jan and Vince Bowden, were commissioned for their piece, The Face of the Nations, a 10-foot-tall Native American-inspired totem pole, after The Inn's proprietor, Jason Nies, discovered the artists through their local store, Bowden Bells & Garden Art.

MEET THE HONEY RUN FLOCK

Out of all the activities and amenities, guests are always especially curious and excited about our sheep. The sheep barn is a favorite stop on our walking trails, and our Tunis sheep appreciate visitors just about any time of day.

Animals have been a part of The Inn at Honey Run since we opened in the 1980s — after all, we're surrounded by farms. The founding owners kept sheep, goats, and cats on the property. When Jason took over in 2009, he was greeted by one sheep and two goats. Though the goats are no longer with us, that original sheep hasn't gone anywhere. Aptly named "Baa Baa," she's easy to spot as one of the black-faced ewes in the flock. The other black-faced sheep are her lambs.

We began to grow the flock in the fall of 2013. Longtime guests Sam and Diane, who had moved into their dream retirement home just on the other side of the hill, helped set the plans in motion. They keep sheep of their own and offered guidance and experience. Sam and Diane's number one tip? Raise Tunis sheep.

We're glad we took Sam and Diane's advice — our Tunis sheep are fantastic. They get their name from Tunisia in northern Africa, where the breed originated. That background means they're more accustomed to heat than others. While other sheep slow down in the midsummer heat, Tunis sheep are as friendly and energetic as ever.

The creamy white color of Tunis sheep wool is popular for making rugs and carpets, and it blends well with other animal fabrics like alpaca wool. You'll notice that our lambs are a darker color: they're born with a mahogany coat that lightens as they grow up, but their heads and legs keep a dark cinnamon shade.

Tunis sheep can be raised for both meat and wool, though we wouldn't ever think of eating ours. The Honey Run sheep are our friends, not our food, and besides, they have a special role beyond just mingling with visitors.

BIRDING & BIRDWATCHING

Not only will the variety of species at The Inn impress even the most savvy Ohio birder, we provide birding guides, binoculars, and night vision goggles to all guests at no charge, and each room includes a view of at least one bird feeder.

Amish Country is a prime region for birdwatching, with just the right mix of woods and open spaces. The variety of species will impress even the most savvy Ohio birder, and a casual observer can still spot his or her fair share of feathered creatures with little effort.

Birding guides are included in all guest rooms. Binoculars can be checked out from the front desk at no cost. Bird feeders surround every room, so you can spot our winged neighbors from the comfort of your room no matter what room you choose.

Guests can borrow our Yukon NV Tracker 1x24 night vision goggles to see nocturnal birds like Great Horned Owls, Northern Mockingbirds, and Barred Owls around the hotel and grounds after dark.

BUTTERFLIES

During the warm summer months, butterflies of all sizes and colors populate the fields and woods surrounding The Inn at Honey Run. 21 species of butterflies have been viewed at or near The Inn at Honey Run. The following are brief descriptions to help you find and recognize them. Although butterflies fly erratically and often do not allow close approach, you may find that binoculars can be helpful, particularly for smaller or more timid species.

ALFALFA BUTTERFLY | An abundant, small butterfly of alfalfa fields. The wings of both sexes are golden-orange above with a pink blush and black edge. The female has yellow spots in the black edges. The underside of the wings vary from orange to greenish-yellow, but a single silver spot, edged in red and located on the hind wing, is distinctive.

BLACK SWALLOWTAIL | Large butterfly with a single "tail" projecting from each hind wing. Black wings with blue on hind wing, cream to yellow spots in a double row along edges of wings, orange eyespot with black pupil on hind wing. Look for swallowtails in the wildflowers by the Club-Level Honeycombs.

CABBAGE BUTTERFLY | Medium-sized butterfly of open areas. White above with charcoal tips and two black spots on the fore wings. Underwings pale to bright yellow with a black spot on the fore wing.

CLOUDED SULFUR | Medium-sized butterfly of meadows and pastures. Yellow above and below with black borders on the upper surface of the wings and a silver spot ringed with two red lines on the lower surface of the hind wing. Common summer butterfly. Feeds on clover, alfalfa, and vetches.

COMMON WOOD NYMPH | This is a large butterfly of woods and meandering streams with overhung banks. It is the largest wood nymph and the only species east of the Mississippi. It is light to dark brown and heavily striated with black. Two large eyespots occur on the fore wing and may lie in a band of yellow.

GREAT SPANGLED FRITILLARY | Large, orange above with black chevrons and spots across the wings. Below orange with black markings and several silvery spots near the wing tips. Female is browner than male. Uncommon butterfly of early or late summer.

GREENISH BLUE | Small, abundant butterfly of moist clover meadows. Male is silver-blue with greenish tinge above, white to gray below. The wings have a dark edge. Females may be brown or pale blue.

HOP MERCHANT | Medium-sized butterfly of clearings and moist, open woods, also along streams. Above rust colored with black blotches. Below brownish with silver comma on hind wing. Wings have ragged edge. Uncommon resident from late spring through early autumn. Like the Monarch and Question Mark, this butterfly migrates south in the fall and returns in the spring.

LITTLE SULPHUR | A small, bright yellow butterfly. The male has black wing tips and wing margins. The female is sometimes white and may have the black reduced to a series of spots.

MEADOW FRITILLARY | Orange above with black dashes and spots. Brownish toward body. A common butterfly of hayfields, pastures, and stream sides. Has low, erratic, jerky, and rapid flight.

MILBERT'S TORTOISE SHELL | A medium-sized butterfly with wings that are black with a bold orange and buff stripe on the upper surface and brown below. Adults overwinter under bark and may fly on warm days in late winter or early spring. Look for this lovely butterfly in moist pastures and wet areas near woods.

MONARCH | A very large orange butterfly with black wing veins. The margins of the wings are black sprinkled with white. The similar Viceroy has a black line across the hind wing. The Monarch migrates north and south as do birds, but no single individual makes a round trip.

MOURNING CLOAK | Maroon wings with ragged, cream-colored edges identify this large butterfly, which overwinters as an adult and emerges early in the spring. At rest on the bark of a tree, the ash-black underwings with blue-gray chevrons and dirty yellow border provide outstanding camouflage.

PAINTED LADY | An uncommon, medium-sized butterfly of meadows. The wings are salmon with black margins on the forewings, broad black tips with white spots. Hind wing contains four black spots. Underwings are rose-pink with olive, black and white pattern, small blue spots on hind wing. Like the Monarch, the Painted Lady is migratory; and like the Monarch, each generation flies only one way. Fond of thistle blossoms.

PEARL CRESCENT | A common, small butterfly of meadows that flies low with alternate flaps and glides. The male's wings are bordered in black with large areas of orange etched with black spots and lines. His underwings are orange-yellow with orange lines. The female's wings are edged with brown. Her orange areas are less extensive and the fore wing patches are orange-yellow. Her underwings are buff with orange lines.

QUESTION MARK | This is a large butterfly found throughout the eastern United States and southeastern Canada. The forewing is orange with black blotches. The hind wing is dusky orange-edged in blue-violet in spring individuals, but is black-edged in blue-violet in summer individuals.

RED ADMIRAL | Black above with an orange to scarlet stripe across the fore wing and extending along the edge of the hind wing. The tips of the fore wings have several white spots. The underwings are brown, mottled with black and blue. A pink bar crosses the fore wings.

RED-SPOTTED PURPLE | A large butterfly with deep-black wings that shine with iridescent purple to blue. The underwings are brown-black with orange-red spots clustered near the base of the wings and along the outer edges. Blue and white chevrons mark the outermost edge of the underwings.
